Spring 2009

From The Chair

I hope you will excuse this personal review of my association with the community of Ashley Green.

When we were looking for a home in the countryside within relatively easy reach of both Heathrow and the London Gliding Club at Dunstable 38 years ago I succumbed to the charms of the primroses growing on the bank by the drive and the trees that grew on the boundary of the garden that became our home, A Happy Landing.

We were not looking to live within a community just in easy reach of one. Little did we realize that within years the sound of traffic would permeate the garden air.

However we prized the space and privacy our home afforded us. Carr's irregular, often unsociable, working hours, hobbies and family commitments obviated the need to look for interaction with a wide circle of local friends.

We regularly drove through Ashley Green to school, used the village post office and later the Apple Store but it was not until I had read an article by the Rev. Bennion describing St. John's Church in Community Call saying "Many people in Ashley Green do not realize the gem in the midst, or use it to help them in their early pilgrimage towards God, which is its primary purpose", that I pushed my way through the curtain that draught proofs the door of the Church and took a place among the few congregants in 1989.

As the Rev. Margaret Hall grew the church I became more involved and it is through this connection that Geoff Sheppard 'invited' me to become Lettings Officer for the Community Association during his chairmanship.

When Barbara White became chairman I combined the role with that of secretary and thus became familiar with the running of the organization. By 2003 Jill Lea had relieved me of the task of looking after lettings but I continued as secretary until I briefly became vice chairman and then chairman in 2006.

During these years Carr and I made many friends through our involvement in the CA.

When ovarian cancer dumped me in what seemed like a very deep hole in January of this year I was engulfed by a flood of well wishes and support from so many people who live in Ashley Green. When casseroles, fish pies, cakes arrived on our doorstep my London based daughter in law was amazed "I didn't think people did that anymore" she said "Yes they do in Ashley Green" was our response.

The lesson to me is that I have been amply rewarded for any time I have spent handing out keys, writing minutes, helping at events by the support and care that so many have shown to us and for which I am truly grateful.

So may I urge any of you reading this who may well be content with keeping themselves to themselves, as I was, to perhaps consider supporting the efforts of those who run the CA, come to the AGM on Tuesday 9th June, volunteer to serve on the Council or simply be tempted to support any of the various events that we run.

If none of the events interest you perhaps you could suggest something that we could organize that would please you and others within the community.

Who could not enjoy the traditionally blessed by good weather Village Fair that will take place on the Green on Saturday 6th June this year? The committee running this event would welcome help, suggestions for attractions, or simply your attendance.

May I add that St. John's needs the support of all its parishioners if it is to pay its way in the Parish and keep its ministry available in the Village for those who might need it's support, or for those who need an answer to whether there really is a God or to fathom the nature of that God.

Perhaps one day we might even sing one of my favourite hymns together whose leading lines are "Let there be love shared among us - brotherly love that is real, Let there be peace shared among us - sisterly love that is real, Let there be hope shared among us and Let there be joy shared among us - let there be joy in our eyes".

Vivienne Withall, Chairman

The COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION

We really do urge all who have not joined the Community Association, to do so and get involved in our village life.

Neighbourhood Action Group (NAG)

Did you know that Ashley Green is part of the "Chesham Rural" Neighbourhood Action Group, or NAG?

This is part of a police initiative to increase "multi-agency" co-operation with regard to neighbourhood policing. Multi-agency means a group that consists of parish councillors, members of the community, neighbourhood police officers and (sometimes) district councillors.

The aim is that, following public consultation meetings, the NAGs focus their work around three main priorities that are identified by the local community and try to resolve them, in partnership with other agencies on the group.

At the beginning of the year a leaflet was delivered to all homes within the area with photographs of the Chesham Rural Neighbourhood Policing Team which also included an update of our progress to date. John Axon, one of our Parish councillors, and myself sit on the Chesham Rural NAG to represent Ashley Green and other areas in Chesham Rural include Cholesbury/St Leonards, Latimer, Bellingdon, Asheridge and Chartridge.

Our Group first met in May 2008 following a public meeting where the first priorities identified were pot holes (no surprise there!!) and speeding.

The Parish Councils already had a schedule for filling in the potholes in the area and you may have seen the gangs around the village.

(For future information the number for highways on call is 0845 230 2882, and you can use this number to report dangerous potholes.)

With regards to speeding we are very fortunate in having a speed camera situated on the (A416) Chesham Road, but there is still an issue in Hog Lane and Two Dells Lane.

The police have already undertaken some speed monitoring in Two Dells lane on April 29th. Lowest speeds recorded were 20 and 22 mph with highest at 34 and 35 mph.

In order to continue this work they now want members of the public to help with further monitoring, using Speed Indication Devices (SIDs).

If you feel you would like to help in building a better picture of any potential speeding issues within our village then please contact either John or myself as detailed below.

Full training will be given, and we understand that insurance cover will be given so, come on, volunteer!!!

ABOUT THOSE POTHOLES!!!

I am sure you will agree that we are suffering the worst crop of potholes in our roads that we have ever seen.

With regards to a complaint about the holes and the work in Two Dells Lane, Buckinghamshire County Council have acknowledged that the work carried out was only temporary "to make the area safe".

They say that, as far as Two Dells Lane is concerned:-
"This road will be considered for more permanent 'plane and patch' repairs in this financial year!! Unfortunately dates for repairs are unavailable"

Don't hold your breath, but do keep up the pressure!!!

Neighbourhood watch

Recently a new Neighbourhood Watch scheme was started in Ashley Green, specifically for the residents at Snowhill Cottages.

There have been a high number of incidents there over quite a long period of time. These range from breaking and entering to a number of bogus calls from people saying they are from one of the utilities, but at 9pm and without identification!!

A meeting was called to establish the scope of the problem and to get residents to get involved. A chairman was appointed and the scheme has begun.

Given that there are over 35 properties there, attendance was lower than expected, however, but as the scheme gets under way it is hoped that everyone will realise the benefits and participate and be as vigilant as they can to help reduce the number of incidents.

Don't forget that we have a team consisting of the police supported by a Police Community Support Officer whose "patch" includes Ashley Green.

They are Les Roche, Darren Scott, Melvin Mutch.

Use them for information about the scheme, or any other policing issue, or for reporting anything which might be suspicious, or out of the ordinary.

Call 0845 8 505 505 to contact them.

News from St Johns

After seven years of dreaming that we can install a toilet, kitchenette and sound-proof room for Sunday School, the plans have stalled due to a dispute between The Victorian Society and English Heritage about where a wall should be.

(Watch this space to see if common sense prevails- Ed.)

We are running a second hand book stall and bottle tombola at the Annual Fair this year. Sort through your book shelves, or bring a bottle to the Green early on June 6th or call Vivienne Withall beforehand - 01443 862577.

Harvest Festival will be on Sunday September 6th, and we hope to open the church for a display of local produce and flowers over the weekend.

We would be delighted to show some of the produce your green fingers will have produced this summer.

ART GROUP EXHIBITION

The Art Group in Ashley Green is the oldest in the Ashley Green Community Association, starting when that Association was formed in 1985.

Saturday 28th March may have been a damp and gloomy day outside, but in the Old School all was bright and welcoming for a successful and most enjoyable day.

Yes, it was the Ashley Green Art Group's Annual Exhibition. A steady stream of visitors came through the doors from 10.00am to 5.00pm to view over 80 paintings by members.

There was also a lovely display of work by the late Rev. Margaret Hall. Sale-wise it was certainly the most successful exhibition the group has held which of course encourages members to produce even better works of art for the next event.

Refreshments were served all day, and many people enjoyed meeting old friends over a cup of coffee or tea. Altogether it was a very sociable and pleasant day.

Visitors were asked to "vote" for their favourite picture.

"Seascape" by Marion John topped the bill. Here (sadly in Black and White only) is her picture.

The group meets every Monday evening from 7.30pm in the Old School, and our evenings are great fun.

We are a friendly group welcome new members, so do come and join us!!

Have you seen us on the Ashley Green Website?

There you can see much more about who we are and what we do, and you can also see many more examples of the works of the members – and in colour too!

Have a look!

EVENTS IN ASHLEY GREEN

As you will know, the Community Association stages a number of events throughout the year for the entertainment of the villagers and their friends.

Many of these events raise funds which are used to continue the programme of refurbishment and maintenance of the buildings on the Old School site and the Memorial Hall, so that we can ensure these premises continue to offer the highest level of accommodation and facilities, for all users.

The committee who organise these try to bring new and interesting events each year and have been most successful so far, but are always looking for new and interesting ideas.

If you have such an idea, or want to get involved and join the committee contact the Events committee now on 01442 873779. You can also do that through the website

Valentine's Dinner

On the 14th February a Valentines Evening Dinner Dance was held in the Village Hall.

Almost 70 people attended and enjoyed a delicious three course dinner prepared by the Events Committee, consisting of a starter salad of mozzarella cheese with sun dried tomatoes, followed by Boeuf Stroganoff.

To round off the dinner, meringues created by a Committee member, made a wonderful light dessert before everyone danced the night away to "Infinity", a five piece band.. The hall was beautifully decorated by Kim Warren for the event. Many thanks.

The bar supplied wine, beer and soft drinks and everyone enjoyed a great evening, the event raising just over £900 to go towards the funds.

A COMEDY EVENING

This was a "first time" event of a live comedy evening held in the Village Hall, and on April 25th there was a bumper turnout of just over 100 people who were entertained by 3 comedians and an experienced Master of Ceremonies.

There were two experienced comedians, and a "new start" comedian to keep everyone entertained. The latter delivered material which may not have been entirely suitable for the audience, but the other three were obviously skilled, and their acts made up for that to make it an enjoyable evening all round.

With a well stocked bar and just snacks, rather than a full meal, there was little preparation involved. For a first time event it went very smoothly, and the evening raised well over £960.

A VILLAGE WEDDING

On Saturday May 2nd there was a happy event, a Village Wedding.

Jodie Armstrong and Simon Ward were married in our village church of St John the Evangelist, and held their reception in the Memorial Hall.

Jodie is the daughter of Robert and Gail Armstrong, residents of Ashley Green, so this was a real Village Wedding. We wish them every happiness!!

The bride looked stunning in her gown, and the bridegroom, a Sergeant in the Physical Education Corps, was immaculate in his uniform.

THE MEMORIAL HALL

The Memorial Hall can seat up to 150 people, and with the recent installation of a fully equipped, brand new, kitchen, and new toilets we can now cater with large scale events such as wedding receptions (see above) and other functions with ease.

Recently the committee authorised significant funds to replace the chairs in the hall, so we are bringing up the seating to the highest possible standard.

This is how the profits from our events are used to ensure we really do have facilities which we can be proud of.

For details of hiring, see the back page.

Enid Marjory Reeves

née Tilden

This tribute to Enid was given at her funeral service by her niece.

2 April 1909

22 April 2009

Enid was, as one of our cousins put it, “our rosy-cheeked, twinkling icon”. A true Christian with such a positive outlook on life, she emanated goodness, humour and happiness, and inspired us.

Having arrived in the spring of 1909, in the month of April, and having departed this life in the spring of 2009, again in the month of April, Enid rounded off her life with such symmetry! One might say ‘no wonder she was always full of the joys of spring’ but regardless of the month Enid was born in, she would have been like that!

Enid Tilden and her sisters (Ruth and my mother Jean) were born in Lahore, where they spent their first years in the old days of the British Raj. Lahore was a sparkling gem of a place with its graceful Indian domes mingling with pockets of quiet Georgian elegance, which had acquired its own ‘colonial classic’ flavour with sweeping verandas and traces of Palladian grandeur. As children, they especially loved escaping in the hot weather to their much-loved Grandfather Tilden’s villa in Simla, high up in what is probably the world’s most stunning mountain scenery, the foothills of the Himalayas, where they would try to paint the landscape but mostly played with their cousins! On the eve of the outbreak of the Great War, Enid was 5 when the family returned to live first in Bloomsbury and then in Ealing. It was much later, during World War II, that Ashley Green came into Enid’s life as she (with my mother Jean and her first born, accompanied by their mother –our dear Granny Lydia) fled to the Chiltern Hills temporarily to shelter from the London blitz. They rented part of the old vicarage on Ashley Green. By then Enid Tilden and Ronald Reeves were already ‘an item’, having met while studying at the Ealing Art School, and they married on 19th April 1941.

Just after the war Ron and Enid settled permanently in what was then a very rural Ashley Green, and in Two Dells Lane they built a house which they called Codlins on what was then two to three acres with wonderful orchards. As children, playing with cousin Jon here in the 1950s, we remember how it was with very few houses (just the old ones, such as Two Dells Cottage, Rose Cottage, the old post office, the George & Dragon, etc); and, with all the apple orchards (now gone, given way to houses) I remember in those days a sea of beautiful apple blossom everywhere, among which thrived the wonderful old Codlin cooking variety, which I had imagined was nearing extinction, apart from a surviving, gnarled old specimen at Codlins itself! But having ‘googled’ it, I find this is completely wrong, as the ‘Keswick Codlin’ website shows a picture of Enid’s wonderful apples thriving. (This malus domestica “pre-dates the classic Victorian period of English apples...and was first found growing as a seedling tree in a rubbish heap! at Gleaston Castle in Lancashire [discovered in 1700]. Since then the ‘Codlin’ has retained its place as a popular mid-season cooking apple, which readily cooks down to a sweet purée...” So I’ve got it right, at last!)

Both Enid and Ron were always involved in local community life, and Enid especially so with the Parish of St John’s Church, where she regularly arranged flowers on Sundays and special days in the Church Calendar. She was also very involved in the W.I. and did a lot of superb W.I. artwork over the years.

Enid and Ron led an interesting and stimulating life as artists and were blissfully happy in Ashley Green, so early on finding here their milieu among other local, well-known artists and potters who became life-long close friends. A couple of them are here today! Another friend was the Giotto- and Gauguin-influenced Sir Stanley Spencer who, it was said, did a portrait of Enid (which I wish we could find!) I’ll never forget seeing the original of Spencer’s amazing Resurrection scene, all based in his local Cookham, where Enid and Ron had visited him. It was Enid who introduced me/us to this stimulating scene in the 1960s.

In the 1990s, after my return to the UK from Brazil and Australia, I took Enid to several art exhibitions, including the Tate Modern where she was thrilled to see all Spencer's originals. For me it was always a great experience to hear her talk so knowledgeably about the theory of art, the Bauhaus Movement, Kandinsky etc, and see her dear eyes light up with enthusiasm.

Her husband, Ron, was a highly talented, professional portrait painter and mostly painted in oils; while Enid, an equally talented water-colourist, also took up pottery. But Enid gave up any notion of a serious career so that she could devote herself to providing for so many decades a superb, organic haven for her family, with a charming home and a magical as well as highly productive garden; the latter giving her the wherewithal to pursue her botany, her herbs and vitamin-packed vegetable garden, delicious home-made (100 per cent) wholemeal bread; in short, a healthy regime for the family that certainly kept her going for a 100 years! She inherited her great artistic talent from her mother and her avid botanical interest and a sort of natural expertise from her father who had studied at medical college in his youth and was a keen botanist-gardener. This explains Enid's remarkable accuracy with herbs and herbal cures. Enid, having taught botany at her school in her final year in the upper sixth at Malvern, believed in reviving our grandfather's enlightened late-19th century recipes (and much of it no doubt based on 12th century "Brother Cadfael"-era recipes!) Like Enid, I recall as a child her father (our grandfather) giving us Langdale's Cinnamon with five grains of quinine to ward off colds and fever, and it always worked! Enid imparted a lot of 'hands-on' knowledge to me when we used to garden together, for which I am eternally grateful, and she even taught me to make wine! Always a bright bundle of energy, she had long added wine-making to her skills, and made the most exquisite dandelion wine, nettle wine and elderberry wine. I recall after various W.I. [Women's Institute] meetings at Enid's place, many delightful biddies (unaware of the strength of these seemingly innocuous wines) tottering half-intoxicated across the fields back to their homes in Whelpley Hill!

Derived from her deep-seated faith and Christian philosophy, Enid had an inner peace, an inner strength and courage with which she imbued others. She was an inspiration to us all. This along with all her talent, her receptivity to new ideas, her happy disposition, her wonderful gentle kindness made her a remarkable person. It is little wonder that Enid became such a cornerstone in all our lives.

A BIT OF HISTORY

Although not directly within the bounds of Ashley Green we have this interesting bit of history of Bovingdon Airfield, which is only just up the road and very local.

Bovingdon: Airfield & Movie Base

Bovingdon Airfield was built in 1941 and soon after completion RAF bomber command took up residence. Several operational missions were run from the base until it was handed over to the U.S Air Force. With its main runway over a mile long and an elevation that often kept it clear of the fog that dogged other airfields, it was home to the American Air Force for 20 years and was known as US Air Station 112. In the early years the Americans flew a number of combat missions from Bovingdon and some days four-engine bombers would leave for Germany at the rate of one every two minutes and for many locals it seemed as though they would hit the chimneys of houses on their flight path. After this flurry of activity the airfield was then assigned the role of a bomber and flying training base for B-17 crews until the end of the Second World War.

Along with its training role, Bovingdon housed the Eighth Air Force Headquarters and the Air Technical Section and it was also deemed the best base to house General Eisenhower's personal B-17. Also more infamously one of the pilots stationed there was Paul Tibbetts who flew Enola Gay, the plane that dropped the first atomic bomb on Japan.

During the course of World War II several film stars were assigned at one time or another to Bovingdon including Clark Gable who flew at least 5 combat missions as an observer gunner in B-17's during 1943 and James Stewart who flew countless flights as a command pilot deep into Nazi Germany. Many local pubs were frequented by these two Hollywood stars who in true wartime spirit left their limousines at home and cycled from base along leafy country lanes. Other famous wartime visitors included Bob Hope, William Holden, Glenn Miller, Frances Langford and Mrs Eleanor Roosevelt.

In September 1944 Bovingdon became the base for the European Air Transport Service and thousands of Americans, often accompanied by local G.I. brides, returned to the States via the air terminal. In 1947 Bovingdon returned to RAF control and the British Ministry of Civil Aviation obtained the airfield for civilian use. So during the post war years the base was used by BEA (British European Airways) and BOAC (British Overseas Airways Corporation) as a maintenance facility.

During the 1950s both civilian and military organizations used Bovingdon. The closeness to the USAF Headquarters at Ruislip and RAF Fighter Command at Bentley Priory made Bovingdon the ideal location for service aircraft and 1951 saw the return of the USAF Coastal Command Communications until 1962 when the USAF departed and the RAF returned.

The Americans certainly left with a flourish though as 1962 also saw John Glenn's spacecraft "Friendship 7" flown in to Bovington.

"Friendship 7" – May 1962

The international traffic didn't stop immediately after the departure of the Americans, as in the sixties the airfield was the location for several World War II movies. The potential of Bovington was first seen in 1954 when the film Father Brown - a comedy crime caper starring Alec Guinness and Peter Finch - was shot there.

However, the location really came into its own as an "authentic" airfield for five action packed war movies.

The War Lover was the first of these war movies to be made in 1961. Starring Steve McQueen, Robert Wagner, Shirley Anne Fields and a very young Michael Crawford.

The War Lover

In 1964 the movies returned with the film 633 Squadron. and Then in 1969 the airfield was used as a location for Mosquito Squadron, about a fictional Second World War 'bouncing bomb' raid by de Havilland Mosquito fighter-bomber aircraft on a chateau in France, followed by Battle of Britain that threw the Best of British into a cast which included Michael Caine, Trevor Howard, Kenneth More, Sir Laurence Olivier, Michael Redgrave and Ralph Richardson.

After that Television also saw the potential of Bovington as useful location and several episodes of The Avengers and Blake's 7 were shot on the airfield. but the last major action movie to be made there was Hanover Street starring Harrison Ford in 1978.

The airfield was shut down in 1972 – and for over 30 years it has seen no further movie action.

It is still though an important navigational beacon for Heathrow and the Bovington stack is a vital holding area for aircraft approaching Heathrow Airport. At busy times on a clear day if you look up you might spot up to a dozen planes circling overhead the ruins of what was once an action-packed location.
